

“Interpreting Weddings and Funerals (And All Those Other Religious Ceremonies We’re Called to Do)”

NEW LOCATION – see below!

Presenter: Noah Butler

TARGET AUDIENCE: Advanced interpreting students and professional interpreters

DESCRIPTION: As interpreters, we’re often asked to interpret a friend or client’s wedding or perhaps a funeral, christening, or bar mitzvah. Although interpreting these services requires adequate preparation and advance knowledge of logistics, we are often called at the last minute. This interactive, hands-on workshop will provide working professionals with preparation techniques, logistical insight, ethical guidelines, and resources that will make the practitioner more at ease. The workshop presentation and additional handouts will be available for participants to use as a model for upcoming and future events.

WHEN: Saturday, January 24, 2009 – 9:30 a.m. – 4:30 p.m.
Registration will begin 30 minutes prior to the published start time.

WHERE: Georgia Perimeter College – Clarkston Campus – OLD STUDENT CENTER
